

Missile Stockpile Does Exist In Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara says five kinds of missiles "undoubtedly are stocked in Cuba," although none imperils the United States.

But McNamara also said that "I would rather not comment" on the continued presence of Soviet troops in Cuba, officials reported to number up to 17,000 or on reported military construction activity there.

Exclusive Interview
The secretary's remarks were not in reply to statements over the weekend by members of Congress about the Soviet military strength on Fidel Castro's Communist island. He spoke in an exclusive interview given The Associated Press last week but granted security clearance only Monday.

In the growing new controversy over the extent and gravity of the Soviet arms buildup, Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., said in a television interview Sunday night that Soviet troops in Cuba now number about 10 times as many as were estimated by U.S.

officials to have been there last July.

Rep. Donald C. Bruce, R-Ind., followed this up Monday with a House speech saying he has information from friendly diplomats indicating that 40 or more Soviet intermediate-range missiles — or a batch of striking at the heart of the United States — still in Cuba. These, he said, are in addition to the 40 or 42 originally reported and removed at U.S. insistence.

The Defense Department quickly disputed Bruce's statement, declaring: "No friendly government has so informed the United States. There remains no credible evidence that there are offensive Soviet weapons in Cuba."

"If Mr. Bruce has credible evidence to support his statement, the Department of Defense would like to receive it."

The State Department was asked about a statement by Asst. Secretary Edwin M. Martin that Keating's figure of a 10-fold increase in the estimate of Soviet troops "is within the range of possibility."

When McNamara was interviewed, the question was put to him in these words: "There are persistent reports of large numbers of ground-to-ground missiles in a generally bigger Soviet-supplied military buildup still going on in Cuba than this country has officially acknowledged. What can you say about the extent of the buildup as it stands today, and how much of a threat is it to us?"

McNamara replied: "Based on the information available to me, I believe that there are no surface missiles in Cuba threatening this country today. There are undoubtedly missiles in Cuba, and the reports perhaps confuse ground-to-ground, intermediate-range ballistic missiles on the one hand with the other types of missiles which undoubtedly are stocked in Cuba."

Greene Seeks Aid Of Federal Court

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (AP) — U.S. Dist. Court Judge Sidney Mize told Dewey Greene Jr. Monday to exhaust all administrative remedies at the University of Mississippi before looking to the courts for an order for his registration.

The judge announced his decision to defer a final ruling at the end of a one-day hearing on Greene's suit seeking federal court aid in his bid to become the second Negro in the university.

Both Greene and the university's registrar, Robert Ellis, testified.

Dewey Green Jr.

Ellis said the university rejected Greene because of his inadequate scholastic record.

Judge Mize specifically instructed Greene to appeal the rejection to the university's Committee on Admissions, which could overrule the registrar, if he thinks he is qualified for enrollment.

Ellis, in his testimony, said Greene had a grade average of about D-plus in two quarters at Mississippi Vocational School for Negroes. His high school grades were even lower, Ellis said.

Judge Mize delayed action on the portion of Greene's suit seeking contempt proceedings against Ellis for turning him down.

The opposing attorneys will agree on a date for a hearing later.

Ellis said the university turns down as many as 100 applicants a year for the same reason it had rejected Greene. In addition, he testified, Greene was trying to transfer from a school lacking accreditation, Mississippi Vocational School for Negroes.

Greene, in his testimony, said Ellis had told him his grades were the reason the university had turned him down.

Greene attended the vocational school for two quarters — about the equivalent of one semester — as a freshman.

At Ita Bena, site of the school, Dean O. P. Lowe said: "I can't reveal Greene's grades, of course, but I can say this: He wasn't the best student we had. At the same time, he's eligible to return to school here."

At Greenwood, Miss., L. H. Trumbull, principal of the high school Greene attended, also declined to reveal specific grades, but said:

"His grades were low, very low. He was in the lowest part of the class."

Southern Senators Resume Debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Southern senators resumed their long speeches Monday when the Senate began its fourth week of debate on changes in its filibuster rule.

Sens. John Stennis, D-Miss., and Strom Thurmond, D-S.C., held the floor for extended periods while the Southern bloc continued to prevent a vote even on the question of bringing up a rules change.

The motion under debate is to bring before the Senate a proposal of Sen. Clinton P. Anderson, D-N.M., to amend the rules so that a filibuster could be ended by votes of three-fifths of the senators present. It now takes two-thirds.

Even if this motion were adopted, the Southern bloc then could resume their marathon talking on the merits of the change itself.

Some senators advocating a rules change reportedly are in favor of trying to wear out the Southern bloc by allowing only two speeches on the pending motion.

However, the Senate parliamentarian reported that 15 of the Southern bloc still have one speech remaining.

There also was talk of ending the impasse by a motion to send the whole matter to committee, by a motion to table and thus

Strike Talks Resume

NEW YORK (AP) — Negotiations in New York's 59-day newspaper strike resumed briefly Monday as a prelude to face-to-face peace talks Tuesday.

Mayor Robert F. Wagner kept publishers and striking printers at City Hall for less than three hours, in contrast with marathon sessions last week that lasted as much as 18 hours.

He talked separately with the two sides. Then he dismissed them and announced Tuesday's face-to-face meeting.

Earlier in the day there had been a report that the publishers were giving ground in the face of the eight-week printers strike. This was promptly denied by the Publishers Association of New York, which said: "The report of a new offer by the publishers to New York Typographical Local is incorrect."

Printers were averaging about $141 a week in wages before the strike began Dec. 8. The walkout led to the closing of all nine major New York dailies, with a normal daily circulation of 5½ million copies. Some 20,000 persons were thrown out of work.

In Cleveland the city's two newspapers, the morning Plain Dealer and the afternoon Press and News, remained closed for the 67th day as a fifth union, the machinists, joined a strike there.

The Teamsters Union, which started the strike Nov. 29, reportedly was near agreement on a new contract. Negotiations with the other four unions — machinists, printers, mailers and Newspaper Guild — continued. At issue in the various talks are wages, working conditions and union security. More than 3,000 newspaper employees continued idle.

No Confidence Motions Threaten Canada's Conservative Government

Missing Funds Located

ELIZABETHVILLE, Katanga (AP) — Gen. Norbert Moke, commander of Katanga's shattered army, left Monday for Leopoldville to swear allegiance to the Congo central government in a final act of this province's 2½ year secession. Officials here reported some progress in tracing missing funds.

Moke had a minor mutiny on his hands after keeping 20 senior Katanga officers cooling their heels for three hours at the Elizabethville Airport. Moke's authority clearly had been eroded even before he took off with the others to put the seal on Katanga's surrender.

Hope Expressed
Joseph Ileo, the central government's resident minister in Katanga, expressed hope that Katanga's once thriving economy will be back on its feet within three months and that most other signs of Katanga's secession would disappear before then.

He also indicated that progress was being made in clearing up the mystery of the money missing from the Katanga National Bank.

U.N. officials who took over the bank last month reported finding only $116.28 in cash and that fragmentary records showed a shortage of $2.67 million.

Ileo said funds were still missing but that a large quantity of Katanga notes had been found in Northern Rhodesia. Other sources said the notes totaled several hundred million Katanga francs and were found in a safety deposit box in Ndola, near the Katanga border. The Katanga franc had been valued officially at 2 cents.

A senior U.N. expert also disclosed that the Congo's Monetary Council had issued a stop order to prevent disposal of any foreign assets held by the Katanga bank. Union Miniere, the European-owned mining complex in Katanga, kept millions of dollars of foreign exchange in the bank.

JFK's Education-Aid Bill Is Off On Stormy Voyage

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy's sweeping aid-to-education bill was launched Monday on a stormy congressional voyage. Some Democrats saw little chance the entire measure will pass while a Republican protested that an omnibus approach could kill the whole thing.

But Secretary of Welfare Anthony J. Celebrezze insisted the program should be viewed as a whole.

24-Part Bill
He said of the administration's 24-part bill, "Each part depends upon the others. They're all important and you can't segment it. We've been delaying for 15 years and it's critical."

Looming ahead are the same shoals on which the aid program foundered last year—controversy over aid to private schools and the shape of assistance programs for higher education.

Celebrezze told the House Education and Labor Committee the entire administration program is needed "to meet selected and urgent needs of American education."

He refused to discuss any priority points in the education bill, even after Rep. Edith Green, D-Ore., told him "There is little chance of the entire bill going through."

Omnibus Approach
The omnibus approach brought a vigorous protest from Rep. Peter Frelinghuysen, R-N.J.

"The last college-aid bill was killed because it was mixed in with student assistance. The sweet and the sour were lumped together and were indigestible."

"Your insistence on a cradle-to-grave education bill is going to kill the patient," he said.

Celebrezze said it's up to Congress to decide now how to handle the measure. He said the administration had done its job by presenting the proposal in the omnibus form it considers best.

The committee chairman, Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y., said if the bill goes to the House floor as it stands now, it will be emasculated. He endorsed the omnibus approach, but said the education program might be handled in two or three other omnibus bills.

If an education bill isn't passed this year, Powell said, "education for our generation as far as federal assistance is concerned is finished."

Celebrezze said the administration is opposed to a proposal that the government offer tax credits to people paying tuition to send their children to private schools.

For one thing, he said, "Our basic analysis is that it doesn't help the lower economic group."

Frelinghuysen asked why the bill doesn't contain college scholarship provisions, as did the measure proposed two years ago.

Celebrezze said a broader student loan program would replace the scholarship proposal for now, and urged a thorough study of scholarships.

Hearings Resume
The committee resumes its hearings Tuesday with the new U.S. commissioner of education, Francis Keppel, due to testify. Powell said he plans to hold two weeks of hearings, then call an Executive Committee session the week of Feb. 17 to evaluate our findings and plan subsequent action.

The bill wraps up aid for elementary and high schools, junior colleges, technical institutes, higher education, libraries and adult education. It provides a program of federal aid to boost teachers' salaries, and to help build public school classrooms.

The administration estimates the first year cost at $1.2 billion, and the three-year expense at $4.6 billion. Republicans insist the aid proposals would cost much more, perhaps $7 to $10 billion.

Cloud Looms On Horizon Of School Merger Bill

HARRISBURG (AP) — The legislature was beset Monday in a worrisome session that lacked even a puff of debate. But there was a storm cloud on the horizon—school district reorganization.

The House and Senate each took a half hour to shuffle through their daily drills before adjourning until Tuesday. The House returns at 1 P. M.; the Senate at 3 p. m.

Behind The Scenes
Meanwhile, behind the scenes, Republican senators and administration aides began to rewrite the state's controversial school district reorganization law.

On the floor of the Senate, action was delayed on a proposal by Gov. Scrantom that the 1961 act merging the state's 2,100 school districts into some 300 larger units be put off for one year.

The delay was sought by Democrats who indicated they will attempt to amend the moratorium bill.

Amended or not, the one-year delay could be put in position for final passage Wednesday.

The behind-the-scenes meeting was in the office of Lt. Gov. Raymond P. Shafer, who was one of a trio of GOP senators to support the reorganization law with Democrats in 1961.

Shafer said the group had not "agreed on any specifics as yet, but we hope to have some specific recommendations to make to the governor by the end of this week."

Plans Underway
Indications were that the plans under review by the lawmakers would be designed to implement a modified version of the reorganization law.

The amendments expected to come from the Democrats Tuesday for the moratorium bill would put the measure back in the form in which it was originally introduced.

As introduced, the one-year delay was mandatory on all reorganization plans. The GOP-controlled education committee last week changed the "shall" provision of the law to "may."

The Republicans contended the change would allow school districts which want to reorganize to go ahead, whereas under the "shall" wording, they would be delayed.

But Democrats contended the substitute word would stymie mandatory reorganization indefinitely.

Four Brokers Are Convicted In $5-Million Stock Swindle

NEW YORK (AP) — Four brokers were convicted of a $5-million swindle in United Dye & Chemical Corp. stock Monday at the end of the longest criminal trial in the history of the nation's federal courts. A high-pressure sales company also was found guilty.

U.S. Dist. Court Judge William B. Herlands praised the six men and six women who served longer than any other federal criminal jury—just 23 days short of a full year. He said they deserve to be decorated for patriotism, just as military heroes are.

Herlands castigated the defense for dragging out the trial endlessly. "In the hope that the judge would lose his temper and say something which might call for a mistrial."

In more than 11 months together the jurors became as well knit as a happy family. Birthdays were marked with ceremony in the jury room. Potted plants were cultivated. Christmas greenery was brought out for the holiday. There were twist lessons when the panel was not in court.

A woman court aide had a fond farewell to the jurors last August when she went on maternity leave. To her amazement, they were waiting to greet her when she returned to work last December after bearing her child.

Target of this intensive government prosecution effort, which cost some $50,000 in jury fees alone, were Virgil M. Dardi, 57, former president of United Dye, Robert B. Gravis, 54; Charles M. Berman, 53; and Charles Rosen-thal, 58. All are New Yorkers except Berman, who is from Lewiston, Idaho.

The defendants were found guilty of conspiring to defraud public 500,000 unregistered shares of United Dye stock in 1955 and 1956 for some $5 million, while rigging it on the legitimate market to keep the price high.

After the coup had been completed, the defendants pulled out with their profits, and the stock nose-dived so badly that investor victims had to sell at about a tenth of what they paid for the stock.

Convicted with the individuals was Gravis' brokerage company, R. B. Gravis, Inc., which the government described as a high-pressure sales outfit. It can be fined as much as $10,000.

The four individuals face a maximum five years in prison and a $10,000 fine each. Judge Herlands set no date for sentencing but revoked their bail and ordered them imprisoned pending their planned appeal.

Philadelphia Transit Strike — A bipartisan group of senators introduced a resolution calling for a legislative investigation of the circumstances surrounding the 19-day labor dispute that crippled Philadelphia transit system.

Administration Plans—Democrats in the Senate introduced two proposals that would implement Gov. Scrantom's legislative program. One measure would amend the state constitution to allow a $70 million bond issue to implement the so-called Project 70—a long-range plan for park development.

The other measure would give Pennsylvania ratification to a proposed U.S. Constitutional amendment outlawing the poll tax.

Kerr-Mills—In the House, Democrats introduced legislation that would further "ease eligibility for medical care for the aged by removing the responsibility for payment of bills by relatives."

Advocates U.S. Guerrilla War

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army chief of staff said Monday it would probably be a good idea if South Viet Nam's forces opened a behind-the-lines guerrilla-type offensive in Communist North Viet Nam.

Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, who has just returned from a two-week inspection in Viet Nam, told a news conference it is always helpful to hit the enemy a little bit, with some of his own medicine.

However, he indicated the likelihood of any such counteroffensive soon is slight because, he said, the South Vietnamese have had their hands full hanging on to what they already have in South Viet Nam.

Wheeler gave a cautiously optimistic report, saying, "Politically, economically and militarily, the tide is beginning to turn in our favor."

Harkness Resignation Starts New Diefenbaker Opposition

OTTAWA (AP) — Canada's nuclear weapons dispute with the United States split Prime Minister John Diefenbaker's Cabinet Monday and threatened to topple his government.

Two opposition parties entered motions of no-confidence in parliament Monday night which, if carried, would bring down the Diefenbaker government.

New Election
The motions by Liberal Party Leader Lester B. Pearson and Social Credit Party Leader Robert Thompson assailed the government's defense position. Both expressed a desire for a new election.

The Liberal and Social Democratic deputies, along with the opposition New Democratic Party, have the votes to bring down the minority Conservative government. But it remained uncertain whether the opposition would unite to do it.

The feeling among qualified observers was that the opposition parties might bury their differences this time and vote together. The vote on the Liberal motion is set for Tuesday night.

A new tide of parliamentary opposition to Diefenbaker was touched off by the resignation of Defense Minister Douglas Harkness earlier in the day. Harkness denounced Diefenbaker's wait-and-see nuclear policy and predicted the Conservative Party would lose the next election unless it agrees to accept U.S. nuclear warheads.

Pearson then introduced a no-confidence motion assailing Diefenbaker's government for "lack of leadership, the breakdown of unity within the Cabinet, confusion and indecision in handling national and international affairs."

"The country should be given an opportunity to choose a better government without further delay," Pearson told the House of Commons.

Thompson objected to the wording of the Liberal Party motion as vague and said at first that the Social Credit Party would support Diefenbaker. The Conservatives, if they held ranks tightly themselves, would need only the Social Credit Party's 30 votes to beat down the Liberal motion.

Later, however, Thompson described his own statement as stalling and went back to the House and introduced his own motion of no-confidence. It assailed the government for failing to "give a clear statement of policy on national defense." It also cited what it called a number of conservative failures in domestic legislation.

The Social Credit Party has several times saved Diefenbaker's government from toppling, but Thompson said this time it had ignored what he called the Social Credit Party's last-minute appeal for positive action to meet the problems of Canada.

Diefenbaker could grab the initiative by dissolving Parliament and calling for new elections. There has been speculation for days that he might make such a move to try to take advantage of a swell of anti-American sentiment that followed a U.S. government statement last week criticizing his nuclear policy.

Large Investments
Canada has invested $700 million in missiles, planes and artillery with nuclear capability for its forces at home and abroad but has never armed them with nuclear warheads, despite agreement to do so.

Diefenbaker has cited changing defense arrangements and the problem of control for the lack of decision on whether to go ahead and accept the warheads.

However, Harkness told a tense and packed Parliament that Canada should have accepted the warheads long ago. And in his letter of resignation he asserted that his view had created an irreconcilable breach with Diefenbaker.

At a news conference Harkness said regarding the U.S. State Department's statement criticizing Canadian defense policy: "It was a very stupid thing for them to do. It is elementary that any action of that kind could only do damage. I just don't understand it. . . . It was bad to cause bad feeling in Washington."

No Offense Intended

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk told investigating senators that the State Department meant no offense by the controversial statement.

Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., chairman of the U.S. Senate Canadian Affairs subcommittee, had implied he believed the State Department had bungled in issuing the statement.

After Rusk had appeared before the committee, Aiken said he personally is "not entirely satisfied with the manner in which the release was issued."

"But," Aiken told reporters, "that is now water over the dam, and we hope that it will have no lasting effects on our relations with Canada."

In a firm, clear voice, Harkness told the House of Commons: "I differ from the prime minister in this way: that I believe we should have obtained nuclear warheads for our weapons carriers as soon as the latter were ready."

Diefenbaker had said Jan. 25 that he would delay a decision on accepting U.S. nuclear warheads in view of the U.S.-British accord at Nassau on a multinational nuclear force for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. He would wait for clarification from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization Council meeting in May, he said.

Apparently alluding to this, Harkness said he had agreed to a delay "in the hope of getting the nuclear arms question definitely settled." He said he had thought that by staying in the Cabinet he could better achieve this purpose.

Not Satisfied
Aiken said he personally is "not entirely satisfied with the manner in which the release was issued." This comment came Monday.

"But," he told reporters, "that is now water over the dam, and we hope that it will have no lasting effects on our relations with Canada."

He said Rusk had assumed full responsibility for the issuance of a release which brought a charge from Canadian Prime Minister John Diefenbaker that the United States was interfering in Canada's internal affairs. It also touched off a government crisis climaxed Monday with the resignation of the Canadian defense minister to protest Diefenbaker's delay in adopting nuclear weapons.

The row may lead to dissolution of Parliament and an early general election centered on the nuclear weapons issue and the U.S. role in it.

Rep. Walter In Hospital
WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Francis E. Walter, D-Pa., 68, chairman of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, is in Georgetown University Hospital undergoing diagnostic tests, his doctor said Monday night.

Dr. Darrell C. Crain said Walter, a member of the House for 30 years, had been in the hospital about a week and is expected to remain about that much longer.

Dr. Crain said Walter is not seriously ill but he did not indicate the nature of his illness.

"He's up and around," the doctor said, "and eating his meals."

Eaton Invades Home Town For Concert Next Monday

AREA residents will find it hard to resist humming "When Johnny Comes Marching Home" Monday when John Eaton and his American Jazz Ensemble appear at the East Stroudsburg State College Auditorium.

The concert is third in the series sponsored by the Community Concert Association.

The fact that John Eaton is the son of the Rev. and Mrs.

Harold C. Eaton, East Stroudsburg, and a graduate of East Stroudsburg, class of 1953, makes his arrival with the jazz group a "local boy makes good" situation.

The triumphal return is no surprise for those who remember that while in school Eaton was a member of the National Honor Society and awarded the honor of being Exchange Club's Boy of the Year in 1953.

Students at East Stroudsburg Area Joint have had the opportunity to share in Eaton's accomplishments. The arrangement of the alma mater currently in use was done by Eaton while in high school. He also did arrangements for local dance groups and piano.

Law To Music

When he went to Princeton University on a full scholarship, he was intent on becoming a lawyer. But his father urged him to continue composing and follow a musical career. Eaton was adamant. The American Bar Association was his goal.

During work in college, he went on tour with the musical arranged by the Triangle Club. He worked as accompanist in his freshman year and was musical director in the next year. This constituted a first, in that the post had never been held by a sophomore.

Eaton worked up his own group in college and was a member of Stan Rubin's "Tigertown Five." At one point, he toured with the "Five" and made a stand in Carnegie Hall.

Gained To Award

Turning to music on a full time basis, Eaton took post graduate work with Roger Session, dean of American composers, and in 1960, 1961 and 1962, held the highest award an American composer can achieve, the "Prix de Rome."

Guggenheim Fellowship followed with Eaton going to Rome to live and work on composing. He will be in the United States for two months on tour with the American Jazz Ensemble after three and one-half years on the continent.

The red-haired composer and his group will arrive Monday afternoon for the concert that night. The following day, they will travel to Virginia for another program.

But, the concert dates following will not draw so loyal or appreciative an audience as the one Monday at ESSC "When Johnny Comes Marching Home."

IN OBSERVANCE of National Wildlife Week, to be held March 17-23, The National Wildlife Council has called attention to the use of Chemical pesticides as poisonous material.

The organization has put out several booklets warning users of chemical pesticides, and the public in general, of the dangers involved in these poisons.

Posters for the week's celebration warn of the use of pesticides on food that is available to game. Much game dies each year due to the indiscriminate use of these poisons on fodder and food for wild animals.

Persons in Monroe County are urged to be careful in their use of pesticides where wildlife might feed.

Slightly Warmer Weather Picture Seen For Region

A NEW COLD spell which plunged temperatures readings to zero and below early yesterday will give way to a moderating trend today.

Some light snow is in prospect today, according to Scranton Weather Bureau at Avoca Airport.

The snow will make many ice-coated streets and secondary highways more hazardous than ever, highway officials said. Meteorologist Richard E. Simmermacher reported an official low reading of zero yesterday at 6 a.m. The record of 5 below for the date was set in 1908.

Following a high of 22 degrees yesterday the mercury's overnight low ranged from 8 to 14. Today's high will be in the upper 20s.

An extended five-day forecast indicates temperatures will average near the normal of 27 degrees for the period. It will be milder today and tomorrow, turning colder about Friday. Precipitation occurring early in the period and again about Saturday either as snow or rain will total one-half inch.

Slippery road conditions were reported yesterday in the Tobyhanna, West End and Bushkill

Monroe Ranks 16th In Chamber Survey

VARIATIONS in property tax assessments among taxing districts within the same county create inequities in tax burden, according to the Pennsylvania State Chamber of Commerce.

The Chamber released yesterday a study in which 65 Pennsylvania counties (Philadelphia excluded) were compared according to the degree of uniformity of assessment levels for school districts within the county. Monroe County ranked 16th on the Chamber's scale.

The ratio of 1961 assessed value to actual value was 35 percent for Monroe, and the ratio of the assessed value to market value was 42.3 percent.

Bordering Counties

Northampton County had an assessed to actual ratio of 60 percent, and an assessed to market value ratio of 60.5 percent.

Pike County had an assessed to market value ratio of 27.9 percent, and the other figures were not available for 1961.

Wayne County had a 26.7 percent assessed vs. market value ratio and is a third class county.

Carbon County has an assessed value ratio of 40 percent, and assessed to market ratio of 41.7 percent. Lackawanna, a third class county, had an assessed to market ratio of 34.2 percent.

In another assessment, with absolute uniformity of 100, the uniformity of county-wide assessments ratios with the value of school districts within the county varies as follows:

Monroe, 64; Carbon, 58; Northampton, 60; Wayne, 60; and Pike, 105.

The Chamber used the most recent report of the State Tax Equalization Board to compare the ratio of assessment—i.e., the percentage of market value at which property is assessed for county tax purposes—for each school district in the county to the ratio for the county as a whole. Counties in which the school district ratios fluctuated widely were ranked poorest in uniformity; counties with narrow fluctuation ranked best.

Perfect uniformity, the Chamber conceded, is a goal impossible to achieve in practice.

Counties are required to assess all properties at the same percentage of market value. The State Tax Equalization Board makes continued comparisons of assessments and the prices for which properties actually are sold and annually reports the assessment ratio for each school district in every county in the state. Thus, the STEB's annual report, according to the Chamber, provides a means of measuring the counties' success, or lack of it, in achieving uniformity among the different school districts. This in turn is held to be an indicator of the amount of uniformity likely to be found among particular properties.

Bucks Tops

Top-ranked county in the Chamber's uniformity scale was Bucks, which completed a reassessment program in 1961, and in which the assessment ratio for the average school district varied no more than two-thirds of one percent from the county ratio.

Poorest was Luzerne, in which the individual school district ratios varied eight percent from the county ratio. Counties neighboring Monroe County ranked as follows: Wayne (51st); Pike (58th); Carbon (25th); and Northampton (27th).

The Chamber said that its study indicated the reassessment program undertaken by fourth to eighth class counties in the past few years had helped to produce more uniform assessments. It recommended that a continuing study be initiated to ensure that the benefits of reassessment are not dissipated through failure to continuously update the records. It also suggested that more detailed studies of assessment uniformity be undertaken by the State Government.

The rank of counties as to relative uniformity (first rank is most uniform) follows:

"A second consideration is to protect present commercial interests against the type of exploitation so evident nearer the larger cities where new roads were completed in the past few years," he said.

He also noted, "many residents are very strongly opposed to any form of building ordinances such as were proposed for Stroud Township but were defeated by community opposition."

Diesel Catches On Fire

Trainmen Suffer Smoke Inhalation

TWO trainmen were treated for smoke inhalation and damage was estimated at $30,000 as the result of a fire in a diesel unit of an Erie-Lackawanna Railroad freight train yesterday morning. The fire occurred near Sam Henry's crossing.

Lester C. Rice, Stroud Township fire chief, said the third unit of the three-unit diesel caught fire from brake shoes throwing sparks against the frame of the unit and igniting oil.

Cab Guttied

He said the cab of the unit was gutted. Burned were generators, batteries and radio-telephone communications equipment. The train, with 89 cars, was en route from Scranton to Port Morris, N. J.

The fire was discovered shortly before 8 a.m. as the train neared the west Henryville Scranton, brakeman on the train, walked to the Henryville Crossing. Joseph Mulderig of House, a distance of about two miles, to summon firemen.

Treated At Scene

Mulderig and George Shaugher, the engineer, also of Scranton, were treated at the scene by firemen for smoke inhalation. They were later treated at Monroe County General Hospital, released and returned to Scranton.

Rice said his department used 1,000 gallons of water, in addition to dry powder and carbon dioxide in extinguishing the flames.

The burned unit was removed from the train at the Gravel Place crossing yesterday afternoon.

Resh Winner OF Jaycees' Distinguished Service Award

ASHER W. RESH, 35, East Stroudsburg, RD 2, yesterday was named the winner of the Pocono Mountains Junior Chamber of Commerce's annual distinguished service award.

Resh was recommended for the award by Rev. Harold C. Eaton, pastor of East Stroudsburg Methodist Church. He will receive the award Thursday at the Jaycees' annual award dinner.

The congregation voted unanimously at a meeting Sunday following church services to extend a call to the Rev. Mr. Skyles.

A commission was elected from the session and the congregation to meet with the Lehigh Presbytery to extend the call. Rev. Gordon Roof was moderator. Elected to the commission from the session were Richard Werner and Mrs. Everett Price, alternate. Dennis Harris and Charles Williams, alternate, were elected from the congregation.

Werner reported for the pulpit nominating committee. John Desher, clerk of session and Dr. J. Z. Heberling and Edward C. Fishler were tellers.

Tripled In Membership

Rev. Eaton told the selection committee that the scout troop tripled in membership and general advancement after Resh became its leader. The minister said Resh is now being considered for posts at the county and district level in scouting.

"I know of no more lasting contribution to a community than effective leadership in youth training," Rev. Eaton wrote of Resh. "Several of Mr. Resh's boy scouts are in top level scouting. Mr. Resh took a troop that was only half functioning and has raised it to a status of excellence in advancement seldom achieved."

Judges for the event who selected the winner were Earl Groner, superintendent of Stroud Union School District; LeRoy Mikels, past president of the Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce and Stroud Twp. businessman; and Rev. William Wunder, pastor of Grace Lutheran Church, East Stroudsburg.

Candidates for the fourth annual DSA Award were selected on a county-wide basis.

Fred Reinhold, Stroudsburg, is chairman of the DSA Award Committee.

Bringing Out The Best

The year 1962 was one of vast development in a wide field of medical sciences. That piece of good news comes from the American Medical Association. In fact, there may have been several major "breakthroughs", though it will take time before that can be known with certainty. One is in the field of genetics, where the long-heralded breakdown of what the scientists call "the genetic code" is firmly underway. This is progress of the utmost significance, for the code dictates all growth and life functions from the nucleus of every living cell.

The medical achievements of 1962 make up a lengthy list. A few examples: A drug capable of curing a virus disease was discovered for the first time. Progress was made toward solving the very difficult problems connected with medical transplants—that is, replacing worn and diseased human parts with those of another person. There were developments in methods of stimulating failing hearts. And more work was done in drug development directed at cancer. No one drug proved completely successful, but several may point the way toward possible breakthroughs in this field.

So, in 1962, as in other years, American medical science continued to stride ahead. And it did it in a climate of freedom that brings out the best in the doctors, researchers, and other scientists concerned.

Opinions Of Other Editors

Why Not Educate Women?

Our women are quite capable of defending themselves. But lest they think we don't care, let us issue a ringing denial to the allegation of French-born historian Jacques Barzun that we Americans waste thousands of dollars on "the higher education of women who never contribute anything to society."

Just how does one measure the contribution of any individual, male or female, to society? Surely not just in the terms of books published, research done, students taught, profits made, philanthropies endowed, etc.

What about the intellectual guidance and inspiration quietly given sons and daughters who gain fame or make direct, identifiable contributions to society? What about the companionship and encouragement given husbands laboring in the social endeavors on which Barzun apparently has his eyes too firmly fixed?

What about the simple (?) matter of maintaining stable, civilized homes from which may come the sort of stable, highly motivated citizens our nation and the world today need more than ever?

Of course, there probably are women, perhaps a considerable number, who do make no contribution to society, no matter how generously you define contribution. But we cannot help wondering if they may not be out-numbered by men, even college-educated men, about whom the same must be said.

Not Economic Puritans

Chairman Walter Heller of the President's Committee of Economic Advisors blames the "basic Puritan ethic" of the American people for their fear of an unbalanced Federal budget. This is the sort of accusation that could only be made by somebody who has spent most of his life in a cloister, far from bruising contact with the madding crowd.

It is egghead philosophizing from the word Go. Nobody who really knows the American people, who think nothing of loading themselves up as individuals and families with monthly time payments for cars, refrigerators, home mortgages and even "fly now, pay later" trips abroad, would ever accuse the inhabitants of our split-level suburbs of being economic Puritans.

Actually, what is bothering many citizens these days is something quite different from Puritan scruples about the "immorality" of government debt. People are worried, not about the ethical aspects of an unbalanced budget, but about its effectiveness in promoting a quick "take-off" to enhanced national prosperity.

The big bogey at the moment is the possibility that continued Federal deficits must negate the value of any tax cuts the people may have coming to them. Far from opposing tax cuts in the name of John Calvin of Sixteenth Century Protestant Geneva or the Pilgrim Fathers of old Plymouth, people are fearful that the promised reduction in taxes will turn out to be a phony, something that is destined to be made in deteriorating dollars and hence worthless to the end of enabling the citizen to go on with his very un-Puritan spending on a constantly rising standard of living.

Only an occasional individual can quote statistics about the effect of deteriorating dollars and a high-cost domestic economy on international gold movements. But common sense tells most people that there is a connection between fiscal looseness at home and distrust of the dollar abroad.

A rotting dollar must, in the end, cause foreign central banks to cash in their balances in American currency for gold. And as the gold hemorrhage goes on, the inflationary impact on the American monetary system must hurt every citizen's ability to buy. Real Puritans, insured to hardship, might not mind this so much. But the very un-Puritan dweller in a new split-level home who wants a new washing machine, a better car, and the wherewithal to send junior to a good college, must resent it as a personal outrage.

This is what makes Dr. Heller's remarks about the "basic Puritan ethic" of the American people so inappropriate as to be laughable.

Committed as they are to an economy of time payments, Americans would not mind seeing their government go "on the cuff" if they knew that the increase in the federal debt could be extinguished over the normal short or intermediate cycle that is the rule for private installment buying.

This, in effect, is what the Administration is promising when it anticipates that a tax cut will so stimulate business that it will produce a budgetary surplus three or four years hence. But to hope that the economy may be brought into balance by such means involves an act of faith. And how many Congressmen, worried about the ability of their constituents to sustain such faith, will be impressed by the "new" economists' reasoning?

The faith in the government's arguments would be tested the moment that the Treasury tried to cover the projected $11.9 billion deficit for the next fiscal year by selling bonds to the people. If the bonds could be disposed of by marketing them to individuals who would sell them to one side, they would not be a cause of inflation.

But if the government, to finance a $11.9 billion increase in the national debt, should be reduced to stuffing I.O.U.s into the banking system, where they would swell the money supply, the resulting inflation might shortly cancel every bit of the purchasing power released by tax cuts.

The whole business is necessarily a gamble on a federal promise that the tax cuts will buy more than debt-induced inflation will snuff out. Whether the people choose to accept the gamble has nothing whatsoever to do with any "Puritan ethic." It is purely a question of the odds that an economically un-Puritan society chooses to accept.

About Town Gene Brown

His Request
The preacher in the small Southern town was giving his congregation plenty of fire and brimstone about the sinful life they were leading.

He finally shouted at his flock, "You're sinful, sinful! Why, I don't believe that among the young ladies here there's one that hasn't sinned!" He glanced around with a challenge in his eye. "If there's one in this congregation let her stand up!"

Finally, in the rear of the church a young married woman holding a baby in her arms got to her feet.

The minister sputtered. "M'am, I don't think you understood my demand. I said, if there was one without sin in the congregation she should stand up."

The Pennsylvania Story

Boxing The 'Squawk-Box'

Harrisburg — It is ironic perhaps, but anti-administration Democratic lawmakers in Pennsylvania's current legislative session may well find themselves somewhat boxed in—on the squawkbox front.

Of course the question immediately arises as to how a politician can ever be boxed in on the squawk front!

Actually however it goes deeper than the mere semantics of protesting, opposing or the raising of a political tirade.

What the Democratic minority blocs in the House and Senate are faced with this session is an oddity in many respects; an oddity that places members of these blocs in an awkward position — insofar as many of the proposals of the Republican Scranton administration are concerned.

In the first place it should be remembered that Democratic political policy almost always has been one of appealing to the "rolling masses," or as Democratic leaders themselves like to refer to it — "the little people."

Thus the so-called "give-away" programs of government on both the national and state levels have been primarily Democratic ideologies — on the campaign trail, legislatively, and from the standpoint of the executive branch.

However the new-in-office Republican Scranton Administration (much to the outraged dismay of many a Democratic stalwart on Capitol Hill) apparently is determined to follow a somewhat similar line in developing its own administration program!

In a nutshell: A number of programs championed by Democrats are due for pick-up by Republicans (in revision form for the most part, of course) — which under the circumstances places Democratic lawmakers in the somewhat queer position that if they oppose such measures, they will in effect be opposing their own long espoused ideals!

For example, look at these Scrantonian legislative proposals:

Expansion of both scope and fiscal responsibility of the Pennsylvania Industrial Development Authority (PIDA), originally brewed during the Democratic Administration with the avowed purposes (and it has) of providing new jobs for Pennsylvania's "jobless masses";

Expansion of Pennsylvania's medical care for the aged program — which Democrats dislike under the Federal (Republican) Kerr-Mills program, but which obviously is better than none;

Expansion of civil service — for the "masses" of governmental employees;

Improving pension benefits for Pennsylvania's blind veterans.

These merely serve to illustrate the point; there are others now and more in the offing.

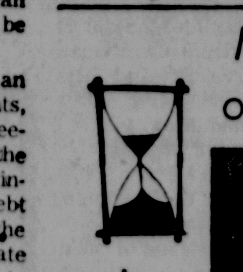

But the question is one of how can Democratic lawmakers build up any sort of campaign strategy through opposing — strongly and effectively, that is — these programs fingered by the incumbent Republican administration, when at the same time they fall fairly closely in line with their own chants, proposals and ideals?

It's a ticklish point for the minority Democratic blocs. Indicative of the "trend" is the fact that so far in this month-old session, minority opposition has been taken at best — with little behind-the-scenes indication even now of much activity build-up on the opposition side!

On the surface the natural and routine expectation would be that "great battles" over legislative programs are in the making. The 1963 session may well wind up an exception on this score — the squawk may be boxed!

The Jaycees are providing a gala evening for the gentry of the Pocono Mountains. Lynch, whether you are a Giant fan or not, will provide inside information on the NFL; Casey the data on what it takes to be the youngest senator in the Assembly at Harrisburg; and the winner of the Distinguished Service Award who will offer the attendees a person who has done a worthwhile job for his community.

So, if you have a couple of hours to spare Thursday night, why don't you take in the Jaycees. You can't go wrong learning about professional football, politics, and the molding of a DSA victor. Plus chow that is advertised as "gourmet's" delight.

The ex-Notre Dame luminary who is best remembered by the Fighting Irish for scoring the touchdown which snapped Oklahoma's 47-game win streak, faces as tough an assignment this coming Thursday as he did when his Giants met the Green Bay Packers for the NFL title.

Try and Stop Me —by Bennet Cerf

A confirmed diner-out in Manhattan has one conversational gambit that usually stops a new dinner partner cold at some stage in the proceedings. He turns a pair of innocent blue eyes on the lady and says, "I wonder if you know how to take blood stains out of a buffalo robe?" Most partners register amusement at his off-beat approach, but one pert miss last week crossed him up. Her comment was "You clumsy oaf! How on earth did you get blood stains on your buffalo robe?"

A prominent literary critic came back from a ladies' club meeting in New Jersey last week in a rather chastened mood. He had lectured on the influences exerted on current literature by Faulkner, Hemingway, and O'Hara, and done rather well, too, he thought — that is until the president of the club confided to him, "You were wonderful today, Mr. P., wonderful! Our literary criticisms were as welcome as water to a drowning man!"

The Allen-Scott Report

Cuba Ups Heroin

Washington — With the assistance of some 1,200 technicians from Red China, Fidel Castro is embarking on a large-scale project to make Cuba a major heroin producer.

Thousands of acres of rich farming land are being planted with poppies imported from Communist China for this purpose.

The Chinese specialists also are supervising the construction of a heroin processing and packaging plant. This plant is scheduled to be completed later this year in time to process the first opium crop.

It is now definitely known that the first of these sinister poppy fields were planted more than eight months ago. That means the first heroin crop should be harvested late this year. It takes about 18 months to grow the seeds from which opium is obtained.

Hundreds of additional poppy fields are constantly being planted in carefully selected areas. For some time, almost every group of Cuban refugees has brought reports of these extensive operations.

U. S. narcotics experts, after a thorough study of these accounts, are convinced the Castro regime is engaged in making heroin production a major industry.

In support of this belief, U.S. authorities cite three significant factors:

(1) Red China, largest opium producer in the world, netted more than $200 million in foreign exchange last year in illicit sales of this drug throughout the world. A considerable portion of this narcotics money was used to finance the purchase of millions of bushels of grain from Canada, Australia and other western countries.

(2) The Communist rulers of Cuba are desperately in need of new revenue sources, owing to the loss of the highly lucrative U. S. sugar and tobacco markets, and the steady decline of Cuban sugar production due to incompetence, mismanagement and waste.

(3) Opium could easily be smuggled to all parts of the Western Hemisphere, to underwrite subversion, guerrilla operations and revolts.

In recent months, U.S. narcotics agents have been coping with an increased traffic in heroin from Mexico. These narcotics have been traced to Red China, which shipped them to Cuba from where they were smuggled to Mexico.

The Senate investigating committee, headed by Senator John McClellan, (D-Ark.), is probing reports that U.S. hoodlums, once active in gambling operations in Cuba, are now engaged in smuggling opium from there. Committee agents have been sent to Mexico and certain southern states to check on this.

New Missile Pads — Russia is continuing to establish missile cities in Cuba. Despite those soft-pedaling and minimizing statements by President Kennedy, Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Defense Secretary McNamara and other administration officials, there has been no let-up in the steady build-up of Soviet military strength in Cuba.

Today that is more powerful and alarming than at any time since it began.

The one possible exception may be the claimed withdrawal of the 40-odd ballistic missiles and IL-28 nuclear-armed bombers. But in every other respect, including combat troops, Russian military strength on this island, 90 miles from U.S. shores, is more powerful than ever before.

Graphically illustrative of this constant armed build-up is the addition of two new missile pads. They are so-called cruise-type SS-N-1 coastal defense missiles, capable of carrying nuclear warheads and with a range up to 170 miles, depending on whether they are guided from the ground or by radio control from ship or plane.

These two new missile pads were discovered late in January by photographs obtained by U-2 high-level reconnaissance flights.

The existence of these new missile sites is irrefutable. This disquieting information is known to the President, Secretaries Rusk and McNamara and other authorities who have not said one word about it while at the same time trying to soft-pedal the extent and gravity of the Soviet military build-up in Cuba.

U. S. military authorities are deeply disturbed by the discovery of these latest missile installations because of serious doubts this casts on the effectiveness of our reconnaissance and surveillance operations.

The presence of these additional SS-N-1 missiles was not uncovered until the U-2 photographs disclosed them. In other words, these missiles were brought into Cuba without being detected. As this column reported on January 25, the Navy trailed three large freighters that arrived in Cuba — The Sempeter, Michurinski and Angarski.

The Navy's report on these vessels stated they carried a considerable amount of fissionable material.

Air photos of the unloading of the vessels showed a number of huge cranes that were handled solely by Russian personnel. Cubans were excluded from the dock area during the unloading.

These reports contained no information about missiles. Not until the U-2 photographs were processed did a new missile site come to light.

Leaders of the Senate Armed Services Committee have been apprized of these backstage facts. They are also studying certain reports in preparation with particular emphasis on the reason the Kennedy administration is persisting in trying to play down the continuing massive build-up of Russian military strength in Cuba.

Open House — Maybe: There appears to be a good chance that newsmen will be admitted to sessions of the Ecumenical Council when it reconvenes in September. That's what Auxiliary Bishop G. Ernest Carter, London, Ont., says. Pope John indicated to him, The Canadian Prelate is telling Catholic bishops that in a discussion with the Pope, he told him, "Many of us were not satisfied with the news service of the council. We felt the secrecy that prevailed was not necessary and that reporters should be allowed to attend the sessions." According to Bishop Carter, the Pope replied, "There is much in what you say, and I think that will be remedied." . . . At President Kennedy's brunch with new Democratic senators, he told them in reply to questions about Britain's exclusion from the Common Market, "DeGaulle's position complicates some of our problems. Barring England from the Common Market actually may be beneficial to us economically, but not politically. DeGaulle has created a difficult disturbance in the unity of the western world."

Dr. Johnson says:

Gets You Down

By Harry J. Johnson, M.D.

In its broadest sense, functional fatigue may be called "mental" fatigue since the cause is in the mind, not the body. Functional fatigue is our greatest problem because (1) it is the most common form of fatigue, and (2) most of us either do not recognize the cause or refuse to recognize it.

Some cases of functional fatigue may be rooted in relatively complex emotional problems. But observation and experiment have shown that by far the greatest cause of fatigue is simply boredom.

The effects of boredom are insidious. Boredom breeds poor living habits. Many people smoke not because of the pleasure it brings them but because the action distracts them from boredom. Others find a similar escape in eating.

They have in-between snacks. Coffee and cake. Candies. Late night sandwiches.

Weakening Effects

A vicious cycle is established. Soon, excess pounds hang heavily on these individuals, inviting more fatigue and, perhaps, some of the serious ailments that come with overweight. What's more, because they are bored, they are "too exhausted" for exercise. They become increasingly inactive. Their resistance to infection is lowered.

Consider fatigue in older persons. Dr. Theodore G. Klump, one of the nation's foremost authorities on problems of the aging and a member of the Commission on Chronic Illness, has said:

"There is no reliable correlation between how hard a person works and the degree of his fatigue. If anything, fatigue in older people, as we have noted, is seen more commonly among those who don't have enough to do . . . Their fatigue, therefore, has its origin in boredom, loss of incentive and interest."

"Over and over again, when a crisis arises or something of deep interest comes along, these individuals miraculously lose their fatigue."

Dear Abby

Be Honest, Sweetie!

DEAR ABBY: My best friend had a few dates with a young man who recently came to work in our office. She slipped for him. He then stopped dating her and started to date me. I tried to fight it, but I couldn't help falling for him. Now he says he is in love with me and wants to marry me! I love him, too, Abby. We have been sneaking around like two thieves so my girl friend's feelings won't be hurt. He swears he never told her he loved her, and I believe him. I hate to lose this girl's friendship and don't know how to break the news to her. Can you help me?

HAPPY BUT SAD

DEAR HAPPY: Attempting to cover up an office romance is like trying to smuggle a wren past a rooster. You and your young man should tell "Miss Also Ran" the facts as soon as possible. But be kind!

DEAR ABBY: When dining in a first-class restaurant, have you ever asked the waiter to wrap up the left-over steak for you to take home to the dog?

BOSTONIAN

DEAR BOSTONIAN: Certainly. And it's delicious!

DEAR ABBY: We have been married 27 years and have 4 grown children. Please tell me, how long does a wife have to wait to get hot water? He got me the bathroom set six years ago, brand new. Also the hot water tank. All he has to do is haul it upstairs and connect it up. He tells me to be patient. He isn't working. All he does is

NEEDS DENTURES

DEAR NEEDS: Call your local bank and find out. It sounds like a legitimate reason for a loan. (Then the bite is on YOU every month.)

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

I hadn't realized how bitter I've been sounding in my column until I found a letter sympathizing with me in my loneliness. I thought my trouble was mostly being cold, lazy and cantankerous, but if someone wants to impute higher motives to a sour disposition, I'm perfectly willing to take the credit.

Anyway, my correspondent came up with an idea. Why didn't all we lonely women band together and petition our Congressmen to import some eligible men to replace all the eligible American males who have been marrying foreign brides?

Moreover, she pointed out, it might even cut down on the divorce rate if these single women had a man of their own to worry about instead of going out with other women's husbands.

There is, I'll admit, a historical precedent since in the early days of the Colonies, boatloads of brides were shipped in for the lonely pioneers—but even in those days I'm afraid, it was easier to round up a boatload of brides than of bridegrooms, and today the situation is infinitely worse. Off-hand, I can't think of any country with a surplus of eligible males.

Alaska used to but since the word got around, I doubt if even that is such a happy hunting ground anymore. For instance, one of these firms which heilooms wedding dresses once told me that they'd had a girl come in with a brand-new wedding dress which she wanted to have preserved against sub-zero temperatures.

Surprised, the clerk protested that the dress hadn't been worn yet. Oh, the customer knew that, but she was going to Alaska where there were plenty of single men and she wanted to be ready, she explained practically.

Seriously, the matter of loneliness is no laughing matter for either sex at any age—and it can hit the married as well as the unmarried. However, I doubt if there's any simple solution, no matter how fascinating this one sounds. Loneliness is something like the common cold for which there is no known cure.

You just have to suffer until it goes away by itself because you've become so interested in something else or else you eventually die of it. Meanwhile, there are lots of things which can make the symptoms less painful. And maybe writing your Congressman might be one of those—especially if you can find a single Congressman.

At-Home Writing Can Be Profitable Homework

By Roberta Fleming Roesch

When you're looking for something to develop into earning power right within your home, a good starting point to consider is a talent, skill or hobby that you can channel toward extra money.

As elementary as it sounds, this simple beginning applies whether you're a housewife anxious for a part-time interest at home or a man or woman with another job interested in working on the side at something different at home.

Wide Choice
Actually, the outlets that you choose can be as varied as the world's collection of talents, skills and hobbies.

Today's query on this subject, for instance, comes from a reader who resigned her former job on a small daily newspaper to have a family and who now wants to supplement her income at home by writing.

Has Idea
"I have a good idea for a newspaper or small magazine," she writes, "but I haven't the faintest notion of how to go about submitting it. I prefer not to submit locally."

If my material is worthy, do you think it's remotely possible I could rent it at home, write a feature and market it to a newspaper or magazine? If so, how do I go about doing it?"

Not So Sure
Without seeing the writing—or even if we did see it—we'd be the last person in the world to say that developing writing talent into earning power is as easy or as sure as buying insurance.

But neither will we say it's impossible if you have talent or craftsmanship and are willing to work at and study the publications to which you want to send your work.

We know, for example, two teachers who get pleasure and profit out of writing regularly for small publications. We also know

Willhoite-Brown Wedding Is Held In Mississippi

White, gold and Airforce blue formed the color scheme for the wedding of Lt. John Willhoite, U. S. Air Force, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Willhoite, of Stroudsburg, to Lillian Dian Brown in the Pleasant Grove Methodist Church, Miss.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Oliver Goldsmith Brown and the late Mr. Brown, of Waynesboro, Miss.

Rev. Malcolm Mills, cousin of the bride, performed the ceremony, assisted by Rev. Burnell Phillips on Sunday, Dec. 23, at 3 p. m. Wedding music was presented by Mrs. Woodrow C. Jones, pianist, and Mr. and Mrs. Truell Hicks, of Mobile, Ala., soloist.

White flocked Christmas trees on either side of the altar, and palms and white poinsettias with tiny gold balls formed the setting for the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Agnew Bradley, the bride wore a gown of pure white silk with a fitted bodice, bateau neckline, and short puffed sleeves. The antebellum skirt formed a cathedral train. A white satin rose held her veil of silk illusion. Her only jewelry was a pearl pendant, gift of the bridegroom. Her bouquet was a half crescent of white feathered carnations, velvet leaves and lilies of the valley centered with a white orchid.

Her sister, Miss Cecile George Brown was maid of honor, and the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Jack E. Harmon, of Brooklyn, N. Y., was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Doris McCormick, of Hattiesburg, Miss Jean Webb, of Brandon, and Miss Vivian Mills, of Waynesboro.

Givenchy Features Front Fit

PARIS (AP) — Givenchy has unveiled his spring fashion collection and the verdict from seasoned United States buyers; another outstanding success.

American buyers jammed the fashion house for the showing Saturday, which was barred to the press. Buyers, however, said they found the collection most feminine, wearable and beautiful.

They liked the bulky look Givenchy gives to his topcoats. Some are in reversible wool or weaves with the hand-knit look.

Givenchy features circular yokes and often stresses his seaming with welts. He also uses rough tweeds in his coats and a little reversible camel hair.

Most of his topcoats and suits are artfully and expertly shaped with front seaming, leaving the backs loose. On topcoats, they are bulky. Suit skirts are gently gathered front and back. The feeling is that in America buyers will adapt and eliminate either the front or back gathers.

Some skirts feature a wrap-over billfold effect. The billfold panel is pressed, and that is something new for Givenchy. Suit jackets are fitted in the front through seaming left loose in the back.

Most jackets are belted in the front with the narrow fabric rope or leather belt slotted through the back.

The evening story features beautiful soft chiffon, silk organza and flowing lines always shaped in the front. Some glittering embroidery on chiffon features sequined roses.

A large collection of hostess gowns drew applause. They are on slender formal lines and luxurious. One features pants and is slit up the front. Another housecoat is floor length, buttoned through, of light blue satin with front shaping and flowing back. Over this Givenchy places an ankle-length sleeveless belted white organza coat, featuring three-dimensional embroidered organza flowers, all white.

The bride's mother wore a beige knit sheath dress, appliqued in roses of the same material, with beige accessories. Mrs. Willhoite wore a light blue silk dress with an overskirt, with black accessories. They both had corsages of yellow roses.

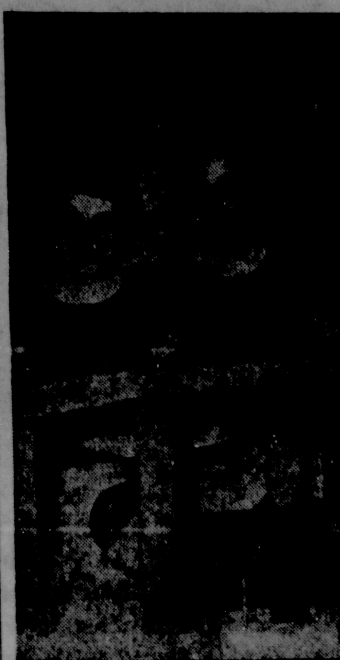

A reception was held in the church social hall which was decorated with holly, white poinsettias and candles. The bride's table was centered with an arrangement of white mums and candles in silver holders. The three-tiered wedding cake was decorated in white and green and topped by miniature bride and bridegroom.

The wedding was preceded by a number of festivities, including a shower at the Pleasant Grove Church, a tea given by Miss Vivian Mills, and the rehearsal supper at which Dr. and Mrs. Willhoite were hosts at the Lakeview dining room.

Lt. Willhoite was honored at a stag dinner at Keeler by his attendants.

For traveling the bride wore a blue wool suit with matching accessories and an orchid corsage.

Lt. and Mrs. Willhoite are now at home at Apt. C-6, Azalea Garden Apts., Blox, Miss. The bride, a graduate of Mississippi Southern University, is teaching school in Blox. Lt. Willhoite will be graduated from Electronic Officers School, Blox, on Jan. 19, and has been assigned to Shaw Air Force Base, Sumter, S. C.

Testing Your Office I. Q.

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Ruth Galliot does not believe there is a way to succeed in business without really trying.

"The trouble," sighs the astute, brown-eyed, chestnut-haired woman serving her second term as president of the National Secretaries Association, "is that young people want to take an express elevator to the top."

Today, she claims, an ambitious woman must stop at all floors on the way up to pick up more education, special training, experience, and maturity.

Even now as executive secretary to the president of a large garment manufacturing concern in Chicago Miss Galliot works at the switchboard once in a while "for the experience."

As the efficient president of some 2500 stellar girl fridays throughout the world she knows well the typical problems that wrinkle a young secretary's brow. Miss Galliot's common sense replies to these indicate why she is considered secretary of secretaries. For example:

How do I ask for a raise? Be sure your performance merits it. Time it right. (Are the books in the black and the boss in a good mood?) Then state your case in a business-like manner without threats or innuendos about other people's salaries.

How do you handle the office wolf? Never allow him to reach the point of being a problem. Your icy attitude ought to warn him.

Are coffee breaks okay? They are an institution, but don't abuse them.

Should your boss ask you to shop for him? Yes, you are there to conserve his time. He'll probably give you more lunch time for the chore.

What is my relationship with the boss's wife? The friendliest possible. Establish rapport at lunch or tea. Be genuinely interested in her problems. Then she won't mind leaving her messages with you instead of insisting on interrupting the boss's meetings.

Am I expected to tell lies for the boss? You will tell white ones to avoid hurting someone's feelings. Each person believes his call is the most important thing of the moment, even though the boss has issued do not disturb orders. It's better to say, with fingers crossed, that he can't be located.

Nicklaus Romps In Palm Springs

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—National Open champion Jack Nicklaus, turning the match into a rout when Gary Player blew himself to a triple bogey 7 on the 12th hole, won the Palm Springs Golf Classic Monday in an 18-hole playoff with the South African star.

Saw Lead Melt
The 23-year-old Nicklaus, who saw his own five-stroke lead melt away in the final round of the $50,000 90-hole tournament on Sunday, coasted in to win the extra-round duel by eight strokes and pick up the winner's purse of $9,000.

Playing under a hot sun, and a gallery that often was noisy and unruly, Nicklaus shot a 34-31-65 and Player a 36-37-73 as they toured the par 35-35-71 Indian Wells Country Club course.

The sturdy Nicklaus, from Columbus, Ohio, birdied the first hole to take a one-stroke lead, was two shots on front after nine and then watched, along with the gallery, in amazement, as Player took his soaring seven on the par 4, 355-yard 12th hole.

Finished Strong
Nicklaus concluded his brilliant six under par performance with a birdie and an eagle on the last two holes as he successfully holed 35-foot putts.

As Player's horror unfolded on the 12th, he had personal contact with three palm trees, a trap, and a missed putt. It started when his tee shot landed under a low palm to the right side of the fairway. He had to stoop over to hit the ball, and when he did, it sailed across the fairway and came to rest under another palm.

Poor Gary had to hit the shot left-handed, and when he did the ball struck a third palm and bounced back 30 yards. He pitched into a trap but came out fairly well, 5 feet past the hole. Then he missed the putt.

That left Player six strokes behind, and holes were running out. Player, who had come from behind to tie Nicklaus Sunday with a score of 345, collected $4,600 for second place, and his somewhat dubious record in playoff competition remained intact. He has now failed to win in seven attempts.

Neophyte Pro
Nicklaus, who has been a professional a little more than a year, is 2-1 in the playoff department. His most famous victory was for the U.S. Open title in a playoff against Arnold Palmer last year. This was the first tournament victory this year for Nicklaus, who was a sensation in 1962, his freshman year as a pro. The first thing Nicklaus did after receiving the award was to rush to a phone and call his father, Charles Nicklaus, who is in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. Player said he gambled everything on his disastrous triple bogey 12th hole.

"I was behind a palm tree, and it would've been good sense to waste a shot and play it safe," he said. "But when you are three strokes behind a man like Jack Nicklaus, you have to go for it. Then you would've thought it would've landed behind another tree."

"Then I had to use a club left-handed. That was awful silly. I just played average golf today. And you can't do that against a man like Jack."

No Split Purse
Both Player and Nicklaus denied they had made any pre-arranged deal to split the purse, as one report had it.

"I will swear on a stack of Bibles that I have never split a purse," said Player.
And Nicklaus added: "I never have split a purse and I never will."

Loyola Drafting 'Sincere'

CHICAGO (AP) — A recruiting system that Coach George Ireland says is based entirely on sincerity and honesty has established a basketball dynasty that should have a long reign at Loyola.

The Ramblers are ranked No. 2 in the nation, have a 20-game winning streak, and, apparently, are headed toward a showdown with No. 1 Cincinnati in the NCAA finals at Louisville next month.

Three years ago, after a mediocre record of winning 21 and losing 25 in two seasons, Ireland launched a systematic recruiting drive.

It produced 6-foot-2½ Jerry

Harkness, a top All-America candidate with a left-handed shot as soft as a mother's kiss; 6-2 Vic Rouse, 6-7 Les Hunter, 6-2 Ron Miller and 5-10 John Egan, the only home grown product.

Harkness, from the Bronx, is the only senior. The rest are juniors. Miller also is from the Bronx. Rouse and Hunter are from Pearl High in Nashville, Tenn.

As a team they are averaging 97.9 points and 61.4 rebounds a game and have a field goal percentage of 44.9.

"It's no secret in the recruiting world that I have a direct line into New York and Nashville," says Ireland. "Walter November, an insurance broker, is a friend of mine in New York. I got acquainted with him several years ago when I was in that city ferrying around for talent. He runs an amateur team as a hobby. He tipped me that Harkness would consider a tender."

"When Harkness arrived here, he was taken under the wing of Clarence Red, the first of our great Negro stars. If, during his stay with us, Harkness had not been treated right, or had not been satisfied, the whole recruiting complex would have broken down."

"He and all the rest of our boys are a credit not only to their race but to our school. They are well-disciplined players and their fair treatment by us is reflected by them in the way they put out in a game."

Harkness, in turn, interested Miller in Loyola. And Miller a year ago brought in Billy Smith and Pablo Robertson, No. 6 and 7 men on the squad as sophomores, from New York.

EPBL Tempers Are Fast And Furious

HAZLETON, Pa. (AP) — EPBL stands for Eastern Professional Basketball League, not Eastern Professional Boxing League, although recent events make one wonder.

This has been a turbulent season for the 17-year-old circuit.

So far, a player and team owner have been arrested after a free-for-all; one player threw a punch at an official and the official quit on the spot after being berated by the league president; two players were knocked out by opposing players; and an owner-coach has been suspended indefinitely for breaching league rules.

Jay Norman of the Camden Bullets was arrested after a free-for-all fight involving players of the Camden and Allentown teams at Allentown in December. Norman was held at City Hall for several hours until team owners paid a fine.

At Camden, in January, the Trenton Colonials led 56-50 with 58 seconds to play and wound up losing, 100-96. A technical foul called against Trenton coach Carl Braun helped Camden win the game.

Hal Simon, one of the Trenton owners, became so enraged game officials ordered him from the scoring table. Simon became embroiled in an argument with a policeman and was arrested. He was released after paying a $25 fine.

While arrests are new in the weekend league, fist fights aren't. Numerous games have been delayed up to a half hour following fist fights which have in some cases involved fans.

Tossed In Snow

In Hazleton on a Sunday afternoon a half dozen years ago temperamental George Feigenbaum of the Williamsport Billies was literally thrown out the gym door into a pile of snow by enraged fans. Feigenbaum allegedly slapped a youngster who refused to give him the ball after it went into the stands.

Basketball fans in the seven cities in the league take the game seriously.

Allentown, Scranton, Sunbury, Wilkes-Barre and Williamsport in Pennsylvania and Camden and Trenton in New Jersey currently make up the league. Numerous other cities in Pennsylvania, the most recent being Hazleton, have held franchises. Baltimore, Wilmington and Rochester were once members.

Liston Title Bout Indefinite

NEW YORK (AP)—Julius November, Floyd Patterson's attorney, said Monday the date for the Sonny Liston-Patterson heavyweight title rematch at Miami Beach, Fla., still was indefinite. He said contracts already signed cover the period between April 4 and April 11 but indicated April 4 was the more likely date.

Liston won the championship last Sept. 25 by knocking out Patterson in 2:06 of the first round at Chicago.

Liston recently received the $85,000 he had been demanding from his purse for the first fight and another $75,000 was placed in escrow.

Ski Club Meet Held

A MEETING of the Pocono Mountain Ski Club was held Monday at the Monroe County YMCA. Plans were made for a ski trip to Vermont in March.

Walter Foeger, noted Austrian ski champ, has been contacted to show pictures at a March meeting. About 25 new members have joined the club.

It is hoped that interest can be stimulated among college students and young people of the community. The next meeting will be held Feb. 19 at 8 p.m. in the YMCA.

Olympians Of Brazil Look To Govt. $$$

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — Brazil's Olympic Committee expressed hope Monday that the new governor of Sao Paulo state, Adhemar de Barros, would find the money needed for the Pan-American Games scheduled in this big industrial city April 20-May 5.

There have been frequent reports that the games were in jeopardy because of lack of funds but Major Silvio d Magalhães Padilha, chairman of the organizing committee, has said that the difficulties would be overcome and the games held as scheduled.

"Our biggest worry has been financing the games but Governor de Barros already is studying the best way to solve the problem," Padilha told newsmen Monday.

De Barros told a news conference that the outgoing administration of Gov. Carvalho Pinto had left the state treasury $44 million in the red. Pinto claimed he'd left a surplus of $110 million.

Win, Loss Skeins Are Cage Highlights Tonight

STROUD UNION and East Stroudsburg seek to snap losing streaks when Pen Argyl's Green Knights hope to continue their winning ways against the tough Bangor Slayers tonight — the highlights of a five-game scholastic card.

The winless Royals of Plus X (0-12) entertain Pocono Mountain, and Pleasant Valley, also seeking its first win after four losses, is at Nesquehoning to round out the slate.

Coach Bob Wert's Mountain-

ers of Stroud Union play host to a rugged Slattington squad in a Lehigh Valley tiff as the Stroudsburg quint tries to snap a five-game losing streak which has dropped their seasonal record to 5-8.

Rugged Opponent
They faced a rugged opponent, however, in the Slayers who have conquered the Mounties once before this season.

The Cavaliers of East Stroudsburg, in the throes of a dismal slump which has seen them lose all of their last eight games, shoot for their fifth win of the season in their 15th outing. Coach Dale Baker's squad travels to Hellertown also in search of their first Lehigh-Northampton League Victory.

A greatly-improved Pen Argyl club, winners of their last five games, tackle Coach Bill Penny's fine Bangor quintet in the new Five Points gym tonight in another Lehigh-Northampton League clash.

The Slayers trimmed the Green Knights of Coach Frank Vari earlier in the campaign, but may have a tougher assignment this evening. Pen Argyl has just reached the .500 mark at 8-9 after last week's win over Nazareth, while Bangor has won 12 of its 16 contests enroute to one of its finest seasons in recent memory.

The Slayers' only loss in league competition came against Wilson, the defending champs who have yet to lose in L-N play.

Seek First Wins

Pleasant Valley's winless and luckless Bears, meanwhile, continue to seek their first win of the campaign when they travel to Nesquehoning. Coach Bill Frear's squad dropped a heart-breaker to Coaldale in overtimes last Friday.

Also out after their first victory are the Royals of Plus X who entertain Pocono Mountain's Cardinals, winners of 10 games in 11 outings. Coach Harry Werkheiser's squad, with the Ryan twins—John and Norbert—along with little Dave Ruehlman, are heavy favorites to win their 11th of the season in this battle.

Southern Wayne's Slags, who won but three games in 10 engagements, are idle tonight.

Bragan Happy To Handle Milwaukee

By BOBY BRAGAN
Milwaukee Braves

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—I have said before and I'll say it again—it certainly is going to be much more pleasant and enjoyable sitting in the same dugout this season with Eddie Mathews, Hank Aaron, Del Crandall and Warren Spahn, just to mention a few, than it used to be when I was on the other side of the field.

Sound Club

The Braves shape up as a sound ball club with outstanding pitching from the veterans as well as the youngsters; the No. 1 catching staff in the game consisting of Crandall, Joe Torre and Bob Uecker; a major league infield defensively as well as offensively and one of the truly great ball players of this or any other era, Henry Aaron.

Right now, I want to straighten out one matter. Come opening day Hank will be in right field and that's where I intend to play him throughout the season. That leaves us with two outfield spots. They tell me Lee Maye has everything to make an outstanding player. Last year he was handicapped by an attack of pneumonia which set him back to a point from which he never fully recovered.

Young And Strong
In Mack Jones and Len Gabrielson, we have two young outfielders who possess everything required of an outstanding player. Both are young and strong. Both possess tremendous power. Jones is one of the fastest men in the game. Both are going to have the opportunity to prove themselves this spring. Bob Taylor and Don Dillard are other young outfielders who will be given every chance to make the team.

I believe our club is better this year largely because of the experience gained by our young pitchers like Tony Coniger, Bob Hendley, Dennis L. Easter, Claude Raymond and Cecil Butler, plus Frank Funk, the relief pitcher we acquired from Cleveland.

We also have two fine looking young left-handers coming up. They are Wade Blasingame and Dan Schneider, who looked very impressive in the rookie league at Bradenton, Fla.

I don't have to say too much about Spahn. He might just go on forever, and as long as he continues to win out there, he's one of my pitchers. Bob Shaw more than proved himself in the National League last season. I look for him to have an even better season in '63. He has a fine assortment of pitches and most important, he has brilliant control.

Lou Burdette has always been a winning pitcher and there's no reason why he can't continue. Jim Constance looks like he's finally developed into a starting pitcher and he could be a sleeper.

Carleton Willey, Ron Piche and Hank Fischer should form a good bullpen, along with Raymond.

We halted to part with big Joe Adcock but I believe Tommie Aaron will be more than satisfactory at first base, where he will have a lot of help from Norm Larker. Tommie came a long way last season and everyone I talk to regards him as one of the outstanding defensive first basemen they have ever seen. He did a lot of hitting over the last half of the 1962 season.

Eddie Mathews is one of the real pros of the game. He played under a handicap last season with an injured shoulder but he never wanted out. I don't believe he has reached his peak and '63 could be his really great year. We have seasoned performers in Roy McMillan and Frank Bolling, who rate at the top when it comes to guarding the area around second base. I was greatly impressed with what I saw of Denis Menke and Amado Samuel, a pair of young infielders, who have a chance to make it as regulars this year.

To properly evaluate our team, I have to go back to left and center field. We need additional speed and hitting and they will have to come from those two spots.

ESSC To Swim And Wrestle

THE WRESTLING and swimming teams of East Stroudsburg State College resume action tonight in the ESSC gym.

Coach Clyde (Red) Witman's Warrior grapplers tussle with Lock Haven, one of the toughest mat squads in the state. The ESSC team, which has dropped its last two meets with Wilkes College and Bloomsburg, hopes to get back on the winning side tonight.

The Warrior grapplers had won four and tied one before their losses last week.

East Stroudsburg's swimmers will be gunning for their fourth straight win against Lock Haven tonight after starting off the season with triumphs over Millersville, Wilkes College and Bloomsburg.

The wrestling meet starts at 7:30 and the swimmers kick off at 8 p.m.

Aparicio Inks Contract With Orioles After Chisox Move

BALTIMORE (AP)—Luis Aparicio, as good as his word, has signed his 1963 contract with the Baltimore Orioles.

The 29-year-old shortstop, the American League's leading base stealer for seven straight seasons, had said at his home in Maracaibo, Venezuela, that he was satisfied with his contract.

Baltimore obtained Aparicio from the Chicago White Sox last month in a trade which also brought Al Smith to Baltimore and sent Hoyt Wilhelm, Ron Hansen, Dave Nicholson and Pete Ward to Chicago.

Terms of Aparicio's contract were not disclosed but it was believed he received about $37,500, the same amount he earned with the White Sox last year.

Aparicio objected loudly when Chicago tried to cut his salary before the Baltimore trade. It was reported then he made $43,000 in 1962 but President Lee MacPhail of the Orioles indicated Monday that figure was a little high.

MacPhail said Aparicio "could well be" the highest-paid Oriole this year. Most of the club's other stars haven't signed but it's unlikely any would make $37,500.

"Luis also said he was happy to be with the Orioles," said MacPhail, "that he thinks we're going to have a good club, and that he's in good shape."

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Tuesday, February 5, 1968

March 11 to April 20 (Aries) — Tell no stories that are double-checked on them. Even the smallest make sure the information would not hurt. Tricky day in spots, but you can handle it.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Some things are not to be taken strictly local and personal. Each must be allotted due time, talent, and one not detract from the other. Aim to uncomplicate matters anywhere.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Children's, oldest interests ask special concern and need your type versatile thinking and promotion. You sense moves to make instinctively, but after sufficient study, instigate them.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — A jittery high and low, and a moody low level to contend with, if not today, soon. But this is all part of what makes life vital and worthwhile. You can sail now.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Note signs, trends, hints made, preliminary action taken. Where you should agree, get in there with a healthy, hearty "yes," where you should abstain, DO SO.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — Rise old ideas, upgrade, the cycle has come round for things that gave both pleasure and were "right" for a time. But take care not to be hasty and leap before you look.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Keep in mind new suggestions as you hold to past methods of merit. That new way may be the order sooner than expected; keep up on all available data. Libra accepts learning easily.

October 24 to November 23 (Scorpio) — May be harsher than anticipated to put odds and ends together and the scheduled straight, but this type day is liable to your gifts. Don't shake the rafters, just keep the ball rolling.

November 24 to December 23 (Sagittarius) — Jupiter and other planets' general positions indicate need for diplomatic action at home as abroad. Some with school training but without inner sensibility will fail in this.

December 24 to January 23 (Capricorn) — Better than for several days for some matters, others will have to wait until certain changes are necessary that were not deemed so before. Be up to date, but not abrupt.

January 24 to February 23 (Aquarius) — More than the usual amount of sodium, or minor details to annoy perhaps, yet they can mean more interesting events, projects. Great deal depends upon how YOU act and react.

February 24 to March 23 (Pisces) — Much to attend to before you can consider work thoroughly done, but if you understand and painstaking you will have long-lasting dividends. Aim for smoothness, accuracy.

YOU BORN TODAY are in the Venusian Aquarius, the Waterbearer, Humanitarian, Individualist. So remember all the Aquarians in the House of Fame (for a variety of compliments), and you will be spurred to achieve great things. We hope. Your biggest fault is in not knowing your own talents and not fully developing and applying them. You appreciate a new design here and there, but you approach to an old (if usable) subject, often visualize needs and solutions ahead of others. If you will KEEP AT IT, you will not be disappointed at "slow" progress later.

Take FAITH and confidence with you, listen to sensible hints, and do not strain when some constancy which knows the value of sleep and rest is all that is required. Take heed your talents, but caution against extremes, exaggeration; demands selectivity in speech and action. Can see the year for true gains. Birthdate of: Aaron Burr, Amer. Vice-Pres. (under Jefferson); Geo. J. Gould, financier; Sir Robert Peel, statesman; Sir William Maxim, Anglo-Amer. engineer; inventor.

Family Room Needs Sink, Powder Room

PLANNING a family room for a new house?

Fine. Don't forget to provide for the plumbing.

The convenience and utility of the family room for all members of the family will be greatly enhanced if provision is made for a sink close to the bar and the charcoal broiler.

Also, says the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau, it is a good idea to have a powder room adjoining the family room or close to it.

If there is direct access to the yard so that the powder room can double as a "mud room," so much the better. In this case it is advisable to have a shower included in the plans for the powder room with a utility room and a sink adjoining the family room.

Many older houses are being modernized by adding a family room. In this case the plumbing costs will be reduced if room can be found for the powder room and sink near an existing plumbing installation.

Homeowners who are planning the addition of a family room should talk their plans over with a reputable plumbing and heating contractor, who will be able to offer many helpful suggestions based on his long years of experience.

Don't Match

MATCHING drapery and wall colors exactly is almost impossible because the different textures of the two materials—cloth and plaster—will reflect light differently with the result that the colors will not look identical. To avoid such disappointment, choose fabric and paint colors of the same family, suggests the National Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association, a light tint for the walls and a darker hue for the drapes, for example.

Antique Wood Proves Value To Dealers

ANTIQUE collectors are discovering that wood is like no other material of Nature which retain its beauty with age and even enhances it. Wood furniture made by the skilled craftsmen of the past is today bringing fabulous prices at antique auctions.

There is a saga of beauty about wood, which the American home owner long ago discovered, but unlike the antique collector who must pay high for his prized possessions, wood constructed homes are among our lowest cost investments.

Wood in homes has glamour, prestige and excitement, it has beauty and honesty, which only a great natural substance can have. It can be one of the most beautiful of all materials when properly finished, and yet, amazingly, it always sells in the low price bracket.

Here's How Warm, Vibrant Colors Make News

When experts pool their talents as they do at home-furnishings markets, one is likely to get a clearer-than-usual picture of what to use with what.

A person who likes a vibrant orange chair will find it looks terrific when placed next to a white wall. But give it an olive or brown-green background, and the piece mellow.

Winter markets in Chicago and New York clearly pointed to the use of bright upholstery, fabrics and painted furniture, all flattering to new Spanish, Mediterranean and other traditional and contemporary influences.

Bright warm reds, aquamarine, Persian pink, lavender, purples, blues from iridescent-medium to indigo were found in more up-to-date pieces than heretofore.

So, how to use these colors successfully if you are your own decorator?

For one thing, you'll probably need a new paint job.

Olive-green walls were used to set off a dining room set upholstered in palest melon. Walls in a brown-green range set off furniture upholstered in orange with another piece covered in a print of an orange-green and tawny brown.

Sometimes one can manage by painting one existing wall a color so that the room can "take it." This was accomplished in a bedroom setting. A bright red upholstered occasional chair and a bedspread and pillows were of the same bright hue as the wall behind the headboard. The other three walls were left white, and the consensus was that an exciting red-on-red picture was created.

Wall colors were often the same shade as colors in upholstered pieces. This was true of bright blue used in dining, living, den and foyer settings. In come instances a deeper indigo blue or a "hot brown" paint was used.

In one room setting, a hot, true orange was used for both upholstery and one wall. But a little orange can go a long way, and if one is working without a decorator it is wise to temper one's instincts toward vivid walls. It isn't wise, either to have more than one large upholstered piece or two small ones in that hue.

Pale lavender walls were used as a background in a room setting where a couch was upholstered in lavender and occasional chairs featured prints in the lavender-blue-green range.

Paint experts say that white walls are definitely out. The trend to darker walls was dramatically emphasized in rooms with black and slate gray walls as a background for furniture featuring melon, orange, red or russet. This makes an effective wall, too, for hanging colorful prints or paintings.

In painted furniture, finishes include antique red, barn and russet red, light blue, pale blue-green, medium blue, yellow, gold, white, white with maroon. Gold and silver stenciling was also featured on antique finishes.

Painted chairs are further dramatized by the use of contrasting hues in cushions, and in some instances these can be dramatic, depending upon where the chair is to be used. Black and white checkerboard patterns are popular for red, white and blue painted chairs.
